What's the weather like in England? The weather in England is foggy and rainy in the winter, however it can become icy and snowy at night time. You should be careful when driving a car at this time because it may be difficult to see through the thick fog. As a result, driving will be very dangerous because of ice on the roads. So, when should I go to England? Well, the hottest time is in July and August, although you should be aware that it still rains during this period.
